Handmade Book of Shadows Update Part 2 Galdrabok - into her cave The Galdrabok

The Galdrabók, like the subtitle says, is an Icelandic book of magic, as in a record of spells to use. The book's title is Icelandic for galdr and bók, so quite literally "magic book" although in Norse magic there are several words for magic depending on the type of magic.

The Galdrabók (Icelandic Book of Magic) is an Icelandic grimoire dated to ca. 1600. It is a small manuscript containing a collection of 47 spells and sigils/staves. The grimoire was compiled by four people, possibly starting in the late 16th century and going on until the mid-17th century.

Galdrabók - Wikipedia

The Galdrabok is essentially composed of two kinds of spells: a groups of spells working by means of prayer formula, invoking higher powers and by which the magical end is effected indirectly. Only a small number of spells in the Galdrabok (8 in total) fall into this category.

"Raudskinna" was lost to the ages unfortunately, as the story says the Bishop took it with him to his grave. This Galdrabók, however, is one of those manuscripts that survived. It's actually one of the more infamous of the surviving black art books that still exist. It's a small book compiled on parchment, consisting of 32 sheets in all.

The so-called Galdrabók, or "Book of Magic," is the single most important document for understanding the practice of magic in late medieval Iceland. It is especially important in that it gives a unique insight into the various religio-magical elements that went into a synthetic national magical tradition in Iceland at the time of its compilation.

The Vegvisir (Icelandic Vegvísir, "That Which Shows the Way;" pronounced "VEGG-vee-seer") is a symbol described only in one modern Icelandic collection of spells, the so-called Huld manuscript. That book has nothing more than this one sentence to say about it: "If this sign is carried, one will never lose one's way in storms or bad weather, even when the way is not known."

The Vegvisir - Norse Mythology for Smart People
Gullveig is a female god to the Norse. She stands between the Æsir and Vanir. According to the Völuspá she was in the hall of Odin where the Æsir tried to kill her with a spear. She was burnt three times and she was reborn three times and when she was reborn she started seiðr and became Heiðr.
